

Ever thought about joining the police,
but not sure where to start?

Nottinghamshire Police are hosting a positive action workshop to talk about our Police Constable Degree Apprenticeship (PCDA) programme.

Positive action is about creating a level playing field and offering the same starting point for everyone, and Nottinghamshire Police are committed to supporting under-represented communities into a career with the police, whilst also studying for a fully funded degree.

PROUD TO SERVE

Be the difference your community needs

If you've ever thought about joining the police, whether that's on the front line or in a staff role, our free workshop is a great opportunity to learn first-hand from passionate people working for Nottinghamshire Police.

Officers from Black, Asian, or other ethnic minority backgrounds will be there to talk about their experience of working for Nottinghamshire Police, as well as hosting an open and honest question and answer session.

You will hear all about the PCDA role to gain a real insight into the recruitment, interview, and vetting process. Staff members will also be present at the session to discuss non-operational staff roles within the police.

7 September, 9.30am - 3pm at Edwards Lane Community Centre, Alderton Road, Nottingham, NG5 6DX
